

invocably the meaning of the dish of troops to the frontiers and the warships to Lisbon. He vigorously protested in the name of the Portuguese movement. He is declared that the English warships now at Lisbon are under instructions to guard the life of the King and protect the lives and property of the royalists.

Premier Canalejas declared in reply that the Portuguese government's advice from Lisbon were so contradictory that it did not consider a proclamation of a republic as a definite fact. He added that there were persistent rumors that the Portuguese government had received reinforcements. Premier Canalejas added, "We have not two warships to the flag to protect the Portuguese movement. It is necessary to maintain interest in the Portuguese movement. We have not accumulated troops on the border, but have given instructions to those stationed there, in case of 'emergencies'."

His Single Dispatch.—The State department worried along with a single dispatch to-day on the Portuguese situation, that cablegram being a "single" message from Minister Gage, those advice have been fully covered by press dispatches. Even Viscount Althorp, the British minister, who secured himself during the government's transformation at Lisbon, does not get into touch with the government.

The government has received no communication from the Portuguese republicans, and when the time comes to recognize it, expressly or implicitly, or to refuse to recognize it, there are no precedents to govern this government course. Premature recognition has to be guarded against, for it constitutes intervention, an act, however, which was committed by France when it recognized this country in 1878.

The young King Manuel was the recipient of a pretty message of sympathy from the United States when his father was assassinated in February, 1908. Congress passed resolutions of condolence, and President Roosevelt cabled to Manuel that "the American people felt a peculiar bond of sympathy with the royal family of Portugal in their great affliction." American Minister Bryan later advised this government that the sympathetic action at Washington, "and a very happy one at Lisbon."

There is considerable speculation among officials here as to what effect the revolution in Portugal may have on conditions in other monarchistic countries.

Riot in Oporto.—Oporto, October 4, via frontier.—When the news reached here that a revolution had broken out at Lisbon a vast crowd gathered in the streets shouting and cheering. They gathered in front of the building of the Republican newspaper, Patria, and took part in an enthusiastic demonstration. A large force of police was sent to the scene and attempted to disperse the crowd by extremely violent methods, but they were received with showers of stones and other missiles, many of which were thrown out of the windows of the newspaper. The police then charged fiercely, many being quite seriously wounded. Many arrests were made, but the riotousness were soon ended. There is great unrest in Oporto.

Spain Rushing Troops.—Bordeaux, October 6.—Passengers arriving here from Madrid reported that heavy reinforcements of gendarmes are being rushed into Northern Spain, and that the gendarme escort of trains has been doubled.

Cruiser Ordered to Scene.—Brest, October 6.—The Minister of Marine has ordered the cruiser Amiral Aube to proceed to Lisbon.

HAND-TO-HAND GIFTS

Witness Tells of Gift Money Paid to Legislators.—New York, October 6.—After today's sessions of the Legislature, graft investigations committee had been marked by the failure of witness after witness to remember details sought by the committee. The witness was relieved by the frank announcement of a hand-to-hand gift of $5,000 in cash by the legislative committee to the Lyons Sugar Refining Company to former Senator John Raines and former Assemblyman Jean L. Burnett, both now dead.

H. F. Zimmerman, the man who passed the money, described it as an unconditional gift, made "in recognition of good work in securing the passage of legislation beneficial to the Lyons Sugar Refining Company."

In addition to the $5,000 given to Raines and Burnett, Zimmerman said he had passed $300 to Charles H. Betz, then chief clerk of the revision department of the Assembly, for his "good work." Half of the money handed to Burnett, the witness said, was to be used as the latter "saw fit" in compensating other persons.

Legislation in connection with the beet sugar bounty paid by the State, Mr. Zimmerman said, was the subject that interested his company.

SPEAKERS DISCUSS NEEDS OF CITIES

League of Virginia Municipalities in Session in Charlottesville.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Charlottesville, Va., October 6.—The fifth annual convention of the League of Virginia Municipalities met at 7:30 o'clock this evening in the courthouse, and was welcomed by Mayor E. G. Haden and Charles G. Maphis, State school examiner. Mayor H. H. Way of Staunton, responded to the welcome. Ex-Mayor John S. Patton, of this city, made the opening address, in which he discussed frankly and from the vantage ground of long service in the city council, the faults and failures of government by council, the chief features of which he held to be expensiveness, inefficiency, and irresponsibility, as shown by the history of the Charlottesville government.

Dr. Charles W. Kent, of the University of Virginia, discussed the topic "Mistakes of American Cities," not by finding fault with their present achievements, or the lack of reform spirit, but by calling attention to certain shortcomings. His first thought was that a city's destiny is largely determined by its conception of itself. If the city looks upon itself as a political aggregation, it will at most achieve a reputation as a stronghold of a political party and prove untrue to the larger concerns of a city's life. If it rises higher and feels itself a business enterprise, a large corporation directly responsible to its shareholders, it will provide for a city in every physical respect superior, but its standards will be largely material, and a good financial showing.

A larger conception of the city is a co-operative social institution, whose largest purpose is the greatest good to the greatest number. This led to a consideration of the true greatness of the city, and this was found not in the material, but in the spiritual. This the speaker illustrated freely. The most interesting part of the address, and its regard therefore not for its present well-being but for its simpler future.

W. L. Craft, Auditor of Roanoke, discussed the mysteries of municipal accounting, and the parity of good and accurate bookkeeping in the management of cities.

S. D. Timberlake, Jr., of Staunton, where his plan is in operation, discussed the general manager plan for cities.

About 100 delegates from the various cities of the State were in attendance, upon the opening session of the conference.

Injured in Runaway.—[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Woodstock, Va., October 6.—When the colt he was riding ran away to-day and jumped a fence, Arthur Puller, living two miles south of here, narrowly escaped being killed. Another colt was struck by the runaway, and was killed. Puller was seriously cut and bruised.

VAST INLAND SEA

Heavy Rain Floods Land From Texas to Pittsburgh.—Louisville, Ky., October 6.—Deluged by the heaviest continuous rainfall in forty years, a wide strip of country extending from Eastern Texas northward to the northern portions of the States of Kentucky, Tennessee, Kentucky, Southern Indiana and Ohio, almost to Pittsburgh, is in spots an inland sea.

While the rain continues in the northernmost part of this area, the storm has ceased in the Southwest, and a cold wave has dropped temperatures to 30 degrees.

Two men are known to have been lost. Mrs. A. J. Birchfield and her grandson were drowned in a rapidly rising stream near Dyersburg, Tenn.

Valley carriers of mail by rural routes have been abandoned in some quarters, and there has been much damage to farm lands and corn in the shock.

MUST GO TO JAIL

Hereafter Smugglers Will Not Get Off With Fines.—New York, October 6.—All sentences are to be imposed hereafter on travelers who seek to evade Uncle Sam's customs law. Offenders caught smuggling recently have been heavily fined and let off. Judge Hand in the United States court to-day, on imposing a fine of $5,000 upon Mengo Morgenthau, wealthy candy man who pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with a failure to declare jewelry and wearing apparel worth $17,000, said: "This is the last time I will let offenders off with a fine. After this all sentences will be imposed in addition to fines and without mitigation given as much publicity as possible."

Mr. Morgenthau's goods were forfeited at the time of the seizure on the Mauretania on September 15.

Goes Into Receivers Hands.—[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Lynchburg, Va., October 6.—The Valley Produce Company went into the hands of receivers to-day. The corporation owns one of the most valuable plants in the State. The failure is due to overreaching itself in the apple business. J. D. Burkholder, of Lancaster, Pa., is the president and heaviest loser.

Woodstock Minister Resigns.—[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Woodstock, Va., October 6.—Rev. H. D. Stephenson, who has been pastor of the Presbyterian Church here for several years, has resigned, owing to continued ill health.

CLAIMED TOO MUCH FOR CORN WHISKEY

Supreme Court Admits Potentiality, but Questions Beneficent Results.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Raleigh, N. C., October 6.—"Whiskey is very potential at times, but it cannot be relied upon to produce such beneficial results as is claimed for it in this case." Is the ruling laid down by Associate Justice Brown in an opinion of the North Carolina Supreme Court just delivered in the case of Thomas J. Newsome vs. Western Union Telegraph Company, from Sampson county. The jury in the trial before Judge Newsome awarded $24,000 damages for a failure through error in a telegraphed order of Newsome to receive four gallons of corn whiskey from one Royal H. Benson, N. C., the whiskey being pledged to Newsome's raft hands, making up a raft of timber and rosin to be floated down the river. The plaintiff claimed that in consequence the raft hands refused to go into the river, but it is a far cry between claiming a profitable sale of his timber and rosin at Wilmington, and had his raft seriously embargoed, and consequently inability to meet obligations in a bank there. The telegraph company's lawyers argued that the whiskey was not sent, and four gallons of corn, rush, raft hands, and was signed "T. J. Newsome."

In ruling that there was error in the trial below, and that the plaintiff should only recover nominal damages, instead of the $24,000, allowed by the jury, Judge Brown, for the Supreme Court, declares: "The fact that the whiskey was not sent may have caused the hands to refuse to go into the river, but it is a far cry between claiming a profitable sale of his timber and rosin at Wilmington, and had his raft seriously embargoed, and consequently inability to meet obligations in a bank there. The telegraph company's lawyers argued that the whiskey was not sent, and four gallons of corn, rush, raft hands, and was signed 'T. J. Newsome.'"

DRAPER AN EASY WINNER

Convention Unanimously Nominates Him for Third Term.

Boston, October 6.—President ruled the Republican convention, and Governor Eben S. Draper was named by acclamation for a third term. It has been many years since a Republican Governor has been re-elected a third time in this State. All other State officers selected to-day were renominated with the same unanimity. The full ticket follows: Governor, Eben S. Draper; Lieutenant-Governor, Louis A. Frothingham; Secretary of State, William M. Olin; State Treasurer and Receiver-General, Elmer A. Stevens; Attorney-General, James M. Swift; State Auditor, Henry E. Turner.

There was not the slightest ray to the smoothness and precision with which the program was carried out as arranged by the leaders last night.

The platform favors a permanent tariff board, strongly approves the administration of President Taft, and favors the conservation of national resources and closer trade relations with Canada.

POLICE ARREST TWO SUSPECTS

They Are Held in Connection With Dynamiting of Los Angeles Times.

Los Angeles, Cal., October 6.—Two men were arrested to-day in connection with the hunt for the Times building dynamite. They are Charles Mehr and Frank Russell. Mehr, according to the report turned out by the arresting officers, declares that "the unions have something else up their sleeves."

Police Captain Flammer to-night said that the men who actually blew up the Times building would not be found in San Francisco. The arrests are expected to be made at some point far distant, if at all.

The seventeenth body was taken from the ruins to-day.

Rewards for the apprehension of the dynamiters who blew up the Times building early last Saturday morning were reduced to-day from an aggregate of more than $100,000 to $75,000, following Mayor Alexander's statement that in his opinion the total had reached far too large a figure.

However, this reduction still leaves the amount of rewards greater than any offered in recent criminal history.

Different only in size and price, but alike in leaf, labor and delight.

No need now to get less value for a nickel than you've had for a dime. All stores sell both sizes. You won't get the right cigar if you just ask for a light cigar. Strong tobacco is even harsher when harvested green for the sake of color. The Robert Burns and Little Bobbie are more than color-mild, more than wrapper-mild. The filler has the same gentle qualities. Made of tobacco which is mild by nature—which is allowed to ripen fully on the plantation and then fully cured before it reaches the bench. You can smoke 'em all day and your health won't notice the difference.
